Dear Parents,

Happy Holidays, to all. I'm so happy to be in a season that's Merry and Bright. We made it halfway through the year. Our program is thriving and we are busy. Again thank you for having your children in my program this year. I appreciate every kind gesture and encouraging words. They mean a lot to me and my staff.

We will be doing a pajama book party on the 17th. Kids can wear their pajamas to school or have them in their backpack. We'll have books, Christmas music, and games.

Please be mindful of the mask policy and that if you need to have someone else pick up your child. Please email or write me a letter.

Happy Holidays!

What you can do to promote early learning

1. Play with your child and provide opportunities for them to play. Play is essential for healthy brain development.
2. Turn off the TV. A young child's brain is largely shaped by his/her development. Children need activities that stimulate the frontal lobe by involving all the senses, not just passive viewing.
3. Read and talk to your child. Phonemic awareness of sound comes from listening to the human voice.
4. Model the joy of learning and discovery. Go to parks, the beach, zoos and take children on walks. These types of activities stimulate early learning.
5. Connect with your child. Connections boost children's brain potential, encourages cooperation, promotes learning and literacy, increases attention, decreases power struggles and builds loving bonds.
